UNMASKED BANDIT; HOLD UP SAVAGE COMPANY OFFICERS

SECURE $20,000 IN CASH AND CHECKS INTENDED FOR DEPOSIT

(By United Press.)
Minneapolis, July 25.—Four armed unmasked bandits at noon today held up the cashier and assistant superintendent of the M. W. Savage company and obtained $20,000 in cash and checks.

C. E. Anderson, cashier, and R. K. Rickard, assistant superintendent, were leaving the office on Central avenue with a satchel containing the funds intended for deposit. The bandits accosted them, snatched the satchel and ran, covering the employees with revolver.

They leaped into an automobile and sped toward downtown Minneapolis. A gun squad from the East Side station took up the trail, but lost the bandit car in the heavy traffic.

ARREST DETLOFF FOR MURDER OF WAGNER FAMILY

(By United Press.)

Austin, Minn., July 25.—Warrants were to be served today on August Detloff, charging him with the murder of his father-in-law and mother-in-law.

The aged pair, Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner, were hacked with an axe in their home at Grand Meadow, July 13. Wagner died instantly, but his wife tossed unconscious for a week before she died.

Two separate coroner's juries late Monday found that they came to their death from wounds inflicted with an axe in the hands of August Detloff, who is the husband of their youngest daughter.

The coroner was to swear to the murder warrant today. Detloff was arrested 24 hours after the assault. Authorities have permitted no one to see him, and have declined to make public any of his statements. County Attorney Otto Baudler today denied a report that Detloff had confessed. He said Detloff feigned insanity.

Detloff's wife, now in a state of collapse at Grand Meadow, will receive a sizeable legacy from the $135,000 estate of the aged pair. Authorities are working on the theory that this may have been the motive of the assault.

BOARD TO APPEAL PENNSYLVANIA CASE

ENTIRE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE TRANSPORTATION ACT INVOLVED, SAYS OFFICIAL

Chicago, July 25.—Notice of an appeal from the decision of the United States circuit court dissolving the injunction obtained by the Pennsylvania railroad restraining the railroad labor board from making public its rulings was filed today.

The case, which involves the entire authority and jurisdiction of the board, will be carried to the supreme court.

Pending a decision by the higher court, the board's ruling on the Pennsylvania's refusal to meet with representatives of the employees to draw up working rulings, probably will be withheld.

"The entire effectiveness of the transportation act rests with this case," Judge H. M. Barton, vice chairman of the labor board, said today. "If the Pennsylvania's contention is upheld, it will be impossible to enforce the act."

"The circuit court of appeals, which reversed Judge Paige's decision granting the injunction, invested the board with full power and authority, and we are confident that the supreme court will uphold the decision dissolving the restraining order."

Judge Barton pointed out that under the Paige decision any court would have power to review and revise the acts of the board.

"The board must not be hampered in its work by court procedure if it is to carry out the provisions and purposes of the transportation act," Judge Barton said.

"The decision of the circuit court of appeals provides that either party to a dispute may bring a case before the board for adjustment, although under the ruling of the lower court, we could act only when both parties had agreed to submit their differences."

The ruling of the board was understood to bitterly attack the road for dealing with representatives of "company unions" and refusing to meet with the regularly constituted representatives of the shop crafts union.

In case the board's position is upheld, Judge Barton said, the Pennsylvania will be forced to submit to a vote of all shop workers, whether they desire the company union heads to represent them.

The case will be of wide application as other roads' leaders in the "open shop" movement are ready to follow the Pennsylvania's lead should it be successful.

GRACE FAMILY'S BATTLE WITH MOONSHINERS IS TOLD

HAVE BEEN FIGHTING LAWLESSNESS ALONE AT KINGSDALE FOR NINE YEARS

NOW ASK FEDERAL AID—HOME AND LUMBER CAMPS BURNED—HOTEL DYNAMITED

(By United Press.)

Kingdale, Minn., July 25.—For nine years Charles R. Grace has been fighting lawlessness alone in this little settlement tucked away in the north woods.

A band of moonshiners burned his lumber camp, dynamited his hotel, intimidated his daughters, and shot up the town. Today Grace has the federal government behind him.

But the government is powerless without evidence. Getting the evidence appeared to be an almost impossible job.

The moonshiners, about 25 in number, have a rendezvous in an almost inaccessible spot near the junction of the St. Croix and Tamarack rivers below here. They are heavily armed and provisioned. High above the point of the camp are sentries with long range rifles.

Their stills and shacks are hidden away in the dense woods that are virtually impassable to any but experienced woodsmen.

The moonshiners have the drop on any person that comes within their range. The intensive warfare on Grace and his family started three months ago when Grace reported them, which resulted in the seizure of 20 stills by federal agents. Light prosecution left them free later to resume operations. They started to get Grace. Three weeks ago they burned his three lumber camps, three miles west of here. The damage is estimated at $2,000.

Last week they dynamited his $14,000 hotel, injuring two men and throwing his three daughters from their beds. The girls, Lida and Elizabeth, aged 20, twins, and Florence, 18, joined their brother Chester, 23, with their father in clearing up the debris. They are going to stick here. They are ready for a war if necessary. The girls wear army breeches and army regulation shirts that will withstand the hard wear and going through the forest. They thought the dynamiting was to be the last of the acts against them, but Saturday night 15 of the gang rode through the settlement and shot up the place. Windows crashed, and doors were pierced by the bullets, but no one was injured.

Grace, with Sheriff Hawley and County Attorney Roberts, of Pine City, went to the Twin Cities and enlisted federal aid. District Prohibition Enforcement Agent F. B. Qvale promised aid. There will be no swooping raid, however. Qvale is going to go about it quietly. He does not believe in bloodshed unless it is necessary. Somehow he will get the evidence needed for conviction. Then the raid will come.

Grace moved here nine years ago from a ranch between Pierre and Chamberlain, South Dakota. He bought the townsite and a large acreage of timber from the Soo Line company. There is no large town within a radius of 40 miles.

In his efforts to make Kingdale a peaceful place, he has brought four preachers here in the last three years. Everyone of them was driven from town. One of them was stoned.

"I have invested $60,000 there," said Grace, "and I am going to stick. My family is going to stick too. We are going to win."

Factory Girl Weds Wealthy Employer

Attleboro, Mass., July 25.—Nettie May Lemond, a factory girl, was married to the senior partner of the firm for which she was an employee. Her husband is Ernest D. Gilmore, wealthy jewelry manufacturer.

The romance was of short duration and began when Gilmore had occasion to visit the department in which Miss Lamond was employed. He noticed her and asked the foreman to introduce him. The marriage was the culmination of this meeting.

Gilmore has been a widower for a year.

Proclaims Progressivism

The latter part of the editorial is a ringing proclamation of the new progressivism. It says: "The transportation companies, with the evident co-operation of the national administration, made an egregious blunder when they failed to deal with their employees as American citizens, and they are now being brought to a vivid realization of the fact that they tremendously misjudged the sentiment of the country when they proceeded on the assumption that so great was the spirit of reaction that they would be permitted to ruthlessly loot and despoil the wage-earners without quibble or protest. Progressivism is a noble and laudable ideal, but it is not to be achieved by the many oppressive conditions under which the people are now laboring, and with the public sentiment thus aroused there will be no halting until the reforms so imperatively demanded, and which we must have if our institutions are to be preserved, have been secured."

STEAMER CHARLES BRALEY IS REPORTED SINKING NEAR TAMPICO

(By United Press.)

Port Arthur, Texas, July 25.—Fears for the safety of the steamer Charles Braley, 75 miles northwest of Tampico, were felt today since wireless communication with the Port Arthur naval station ceased.

The last message received here said the crew was taking to the open sea in life boats.

The first message from the Charles Braley were intercepted at Port Arthur this morning. Later the radio reported the ship still afloat. Then came a message: "Ship sinking; don't worry," followed by dozens of messages from members of the crew to relatives. Later efforts to communicate with the steamer were fruitless.

Shopmen's Side of Controversy As Given by Publicity Committee

ALL MILES CITY, MONTANA, HONORS STRIKE PICKETS

Business Men Virtually Feeding and Entertaining Strikers—Paper Proclaims Progressivism

Something new is happening in connection with the great coal and railroad strikes. The great mass of American people are being touched as never before by sympathy for labor and there is a more solid front against organized capital than there ever was before.

Men like William Allen White are shedding the prejudices of a life time and are offering to go to jail for labor. Farmers, business men and repentant strike breakers, as at Havelock, Neb., are proclaiming for the strike. Bankers, as in Temple, Texas, are expressing sympathy and denouncing the labor board's attempt to cut wages.

Business Men Help

Right in line with all this is a letter and an editorial clipped from a local paper, Miles City, Mont., telling of a remarkable demonstration in favor of the strike by practically the entire community. The letter is from A. L. Ellison, a shopman. Ellison's letter says:

"The Miles City band marched to the Milwaukee railroad shops here and serenaded the pickets who were on duty. All the men are out here except three foremen and the higher officials. The band played for about an hour after which the mayor addressed the crowds, strongly urging the men to stand together for their rights. The whole city is with the shopmen. Strikers are admitted free to the movie shows and also have free use of billiard and pool tables. Merchants are selling groceries, meat, etc., to the men at cost and extending credit during the duration of the strike."

Remarkable Change
After relating how the citizens turned out en masse when the pickets were entertained in a remarkable demonstration, the Miles City Evening American, says in an editorial: "The demonstration, which was intended as an endorsement of the principle of organized labor, appears all the more remarkable because of the fact that some time ago the principal commercial organization of this city adopted a resolution declaring in favor of the open shop. How unpopular such action was with the rank and file of our citizenship was clearly evidenced last night by the enthusiastic demonstration made in behalf of the striking wage-earners."

PUT COAL MINES UNDER GOVERNMENT CONTROL

BORAH INTRODUCES BILL IN THE SENATE WITH THIS OBJECT IN VIEW

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 25.—A national emergency exists because of the rail and coal strikes, the interstate commerce commission declared today.

The commission took up extraordinary action in accordance with the provisions of the Esch-Cummins law, and vested itself with powers equalling those in force during the war to prevent profiteering and to control distribution of coal.

The commission ordered that each railroad should give preference and priority to each of the following commodities: Food, feed for live stock, perishable products, coal, coke and fuel oils.

The commission also ordered that priority be given interchange and returns of empty cars intended for distribution of these designated commodities.

Coal cars were also given priority by the commission order, and it was directed that coal mines be furnished with open top cars suitable for transportation of coal.

Washington, July 25.—A definite move to put the coal mines under such governmental control as will safeguard the country against a recurrence of the present strike, was made in the senate today, when Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, introduced a bill providing for the establishment of a United States coal commission to study the coal industry and aid congress in legislation against strikes.

Borah said his bill was designed as the first step toward either nationalization or strict federal control and regulation "of the mining industry."

The bill was referred to the committee on education and labor of which Borah is chairman.

The bill, Borah said, was not introduced with the idea of helping solve the present emergency, but for the purpose of establishing adequate safeguards for the future.

Freight Embargoes Ordered on Six Big Rail Systems

St. Louis, July 25.—A freight embargo effective at once was announced today by the Louisville & Nashville railroad on all commodities except coal, live stock and perishables.

The step was taken, officials said, to relieve a rapidly growing congestion. Five other roads—the Wabash, Frisco, C. & E. I., C. P. & St. L. and the Illinois Central—announced that freight hereafter will be accepted only "subject to delay."

Riot at San Bernardino
San Bernardino, Cal., July 25.—Two deputy United States marshals were beaten and a shopmen striker injured in a strike riot here.

Warrants charging violation of an injunction issued by the United States district court were sought today against 15 strikers, as a result of the riot.

The clash started when a torpedo placed on the Santa Fe tracks stopped a train which was carrying strike breakers. Two shots were fired in the skirmish.

THE GOVERNMENT WILL TRY PREVENT COAL PROFITEERING

WILL USE ALL ITS POWERS TO CHECK CLIMBING COAL PRICES

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 25.—The federal government is prepared to take action immediately in any coal district in which the operators refuse to cooperate with the government in preventing of profiteering, Secretary of Commerce Hoover warned today.

It was stated that the government is determined to use all its power to check the climbing coal prices, and the refusal of operators in districts to follow the Hoover plan under which coal prices are to be kept at a maximum of $3.50 a ton at the mines, would result in the appointment of a government committee to enforce such a price.

A nation-wide system by which all profiteering in coal will be reported, to the federal government, has been established by Secretary Hoover.

One of the first reports by Hoover revealed a case of flagrant profiteering. A price of $13.00 a ton was being charged for coal in one part of the Kentucky fields as compared with $3.50, the maximum, which Hoover is seeking to establish through voluntary agreement.

N. D. Has No Fear of Coal Famine

New York, July 25.—North Dakota is the one state in the union that has no fear of a coal famine.

A trillion tons of lignite, fuel in an intermediate stage between peat and coal, is deposited in the state, according to Governor R. A. Nestos.

The governor said that one-half of the lignite was commercially available.

"North Dakota mine operators and the public will be prepared, if proper freight rates are granted, to supply not only the needs of North Dakota, but the needs of other states within a radius of 200 miles of our border," said Nestos.

Nestos said the market could be widened with sufficient capital to develop the mines.

The governor told about the supply in a communication received today from his office at Bismarck, N. D.

WEEKLY STREETCAR PASS SOLD FOR $1

Tacoma, Wash., July 25.—Beginning today, the Tacoma Railway and Power company, which operates the street railway system here, is selling weekly passes for $1 each. The tickets are good for as many rides as the buyer or any member of his family cares to take. The new plan was instituted in response to a demand of Mayor A. V. Fawcett for 5 cent fares, which rate was to be provided by a fleet of jitney busses if the street railway company failed to respond to the mayor's demand.

MAKES ANOTHER ATTEMPT AFTER FIRST FAILURE

SUBMITS TO WARRING FACTIONS ANOTHER PLAN TO BRING PEACE

ACCEPTED BY OPERATORS—REJECTED BY MINERS AS "TOO COMPLICATED"

Washington, July 25.—President Harding has failed in another attempt to settle the coal strike, it was revealed officially at the White House today.

The president, after the rejection of his first proposal, submitted to the warring factions, had still another plan for solution of the present tie-up, and troublesome conditions in the mining industry.

The second proposal was said to have been received favorably by the operators, but was rejected by the miners as "too complicated."

The president and his cabinet at a long session had decided to await developments for a while in both industries before taking such drastic action in the immediate future as government seizure and operation of the mines. While the cabinet was in session, reports were current that the interstate commerce commission would declare a national emergency and thus bring into play its vast power to control the distribution and price of coal. A short time later this order of the interstate commerce commission was issued.

President and Advisors Consider Strike

Washington, July 25.—With industries showing unmistakable signs of strangulation in the grip of the coal and railroad strikes, President Harding and his cabinet gave over their entire session today to discussion of whether the time has arrived for drastic federal action.

The coal strike confronting the administration is considered the more serious. It is now in its 116th day. The rail strike is in its 25th day.

CLERKS' HEADS AGREE TO HOLD UP WALKOUT ORDER

ACTION TAKEN AFTER COMPROMISE WITH LABOR BOARD—INCREASE CONSIDERED

(By United Press.)
Chicago, July 25.—All chance of further participation in the railroad strike was squelched today when the general chairman of the Brotherhood of Clerks and Freight Handlers met here and agreed to hold up any further orders for a walk out.

A strike of clerks and freight handlers have already been ordered on a few roads. Union leaders were in touch with the members of the railroad labor board shortly before the agreement was reached, and their strike call was suspended under a compromise, the labor board to consider immediate requests for a wage increase.

The labor board announced that at the clerks decision, all unions have taken votes and those threatening to walk out have agreed to hold up immediate action in sympathy with the shopmen's strike.

OFFERED TO SETTLE STRIKE

Chicago, July 25.—An offer to settle the strike of the Chicago Building Trades Workers for $75,000 to $100,000, was made by union heads, Henry H. Hanson testified today.

Hanson is the chief witness for the state in the trial of "Big Tim" Murphy, Fred Mader, "Con" Shea, and others in connection with gang terrorism in the labor war.

Port Arthur, Texas, July 25.—Fears for the safety of the steamer Charles Braley, 75 miles north-west of Tampico, were felt today since wireless communication with the Port Arthur naval station ceased.

The last message received here said the crew was taking to the open sea in life boats.

The first message from the Charles Braley were intercepted at Port Arthur this morning. Later the radio reported the ship still afloat. Then came a message: "Ship sinking; don't worry," followed by dozens of messages from members of the crew to relatives.

Later efforts to communicate with the steamer were fruitless.

Grace, with Sheriff Hawley and County Attorney Roberts, of Pine City, went to the Twin Cities and enlisted federal aid. District Prohibition Enforcement Agent F. B. Qvale promised aid. There will be no swooping raid, however. Qvale is going to go about it quietly. He does not believe in bloodshed unless it is necessary. Somehow he will get the evidence needed for conviction. Then the raid will come.

Grace moved here nine years ago from a ranch between Pierre and Chamberlain, South Dakota. He bought the townsite and a large acreage of timber from the Soo Line company. There is no large town within a radius of 40 miles.

In his efforts to make Kingsdale a peaceful place, he has brought four preachers here in the last three years. Everyone of them was driven from town. One of them was stoned.

"I have invested $60,000 there," said Grace, "and I am going to stick. My family is going to stick too. We are going to win."

Grace said his bill was designed as the first step toward either nationalization or strict federal control and regulation "of the mining industry."

The bill was referred to the committee on education and labor of which Borah is chairman.

The bill, Borah said, was not introduced with the idea of helping solve the present emergency, but for the purpose of establishing adequate safeguards for the future.

and the Milwaukee railroad shops here and serenaded the pickets who were on duty. All the men are out here except three foremen and the higher officials. The band played for about an hour after which the mayor addressed the crowds, strongly urging the men to stand together for their rights. The whole city is with the shopmen. Strikers are admitted free to the movie shows and also have free use of billiard and pool tables. Merchants are selling groceries, meat, etc., to the men at cost and extending credit during the duration of the strike.

Remarkable Change
After relating how the citizens turned out en masse when the pickets were entertained in a remarkable demonstration, the Miles City Evening American, says in an editorial:

"The demonstration, which was intended as an endorsement of the principle of organized labor, appears all the more remarkable because of the fact that some time ago the principal commercial organization of this city adopted a resolution declaring in favor of the open shop. How unpopular such action was with the rank and file of our citizenship was clearly evidenced last night by the enthusiastic demonstration made in behalf of the striking wage-earners."

PUT COAL MINES UNDER GOVERNMENT CONTROL

BORAH INTRODUCES BILL IN THE SENATE WITH THIS OBJECT IN VIEW

(By United Press.)
Washington, July 25.—A national emergency exists because of the rail and coal strikes, the interstate commerce commission declared today.

The commission took up extraordinary action in accordance with the provisions of the Esch-Cummins law, and vested itself with powers equalling those in force during the war to prevent profiteering and to control distribution of coal.

The commission ordered that each railroad should give preference and priority to each of the following commodities: Food, feed for live stock, perishable products. The commission also ordered coal, coke and fuel oils.

that priority be given interchange and returns of empty cars intended for distribution of these designated commodities.

Coal cars were also given priority by the commission order, and it was directed that coal mines be furnished with open top cars suitable for transportation of coal.

Washington, July 25.—A definite move to put the coal mines under such governmental control as will safeguard the country against a recurrence of the present strike, was made in the senate today, when Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, introduced a bill providing for the establishment of a United States coal commission to study the coal industry and aid congress in legislation against strikes.

Borah said his bill was designed as the first step toward either nationalization or strict federal control and regulation "of the mining industry."

The bill was referred to the committee on education and labor of which Borah is chairman.

The bill, Borah said, was not introduced with the idea of helping solve the present emergency, but for the purpose of establishing adequate safeguards for the future.

KLAN CANDIDATE AND IMPEACHED GOVERNOR ARE NOMINATED

(By United Press.)
 Dallas, July 25.—Earle B. Mayfield, carrying the support of the Ku Klux Klan, and James E. Ferguson, impeached former governor, opposed to the Klan, and to the federal reserve system, and an advocate of light wines and beer, probably will meet in the second heat of the Texas democratic primaries for the honor of succeeding United States Senator Charles A. Culberson.

With 455,000 votes counted early today, coming from 238 out of 251 counties in the state, Ferguson was leading Culberson for second place in the Saturday primaries by 16,289 votes, and additional returns are expected to increase his lead.

Mayfield is assured of first place. Governor Neff has been re-nominated and will stand for re-election without the necessity of a run off.

DOVER'S RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED BY PRESIDENT

(By United Press)
 Washington, July 25.—The long standing dispute in the treasury department between Assistant Secretary Dover and Secretary Mellon and Revenue Commissioner Blair, was ended today when the White House announced the acceptance of Dover's resignation, effective today.

No indication as to his successor was given. Dover clashed with Mellon and Blair when he attempted to oust large numbers of democrats from the treasury department and replace them with republicans.

ALLEN AND WHITE CHUMMY

Emporia, Kan., July 25.—Governor Henry J. Allen and William Allen White, "friendly foes," treated Emporia to a display of their "Damon and Pythias" love today.

Patting each other on the back, they walked arm in arm about the campus of the state normal school here, forgetting their troubles of last week which resulted in the arrest of White on orders of his "buddy" for being a strike sympathizer.

Her Smile Was to Come Off.

One Sunday evening I was out with my best beau. We first went to the show and then for a walk. When we were about three blocks from his home we met his father. My beau tried to hide, but his father saw him and took him home. I followed, and when they came to his house, I stood there and listened to him yelling. The next day at school I made fun of him, but he only smiled and said sweetly that mine was coming, because his father had told my father.—Chicago Journal.

A New Version.

A ludicrous distortion of Scripture occurred not long ago in an English school when a small pupil wrote of the Pharisees: "The Pharisees were a mean, meanly lot. One day one of them gave our Lord a penny and our Lord held it out in his hand and looked at it with scorn and said, 'Whose subscription is this?'"

KLAN CANDIDATE AND IMPEACHED GOVERNOR ARE NOMINATED

(By United Press.)
Dallas, July 25.—Earle B. Mayfield, carrying the support of the Ku Klux Klan, and James E. Ferguson, impeached former governor, opposed to the Klan, and to the federal reserve system, and an advocate of light wines and beer, probably will meet in the second heat of the Texas democratic primaries for the honor of succeeding United States Senator Charles A. Culberson.

With 455,000 votes counted early today, coming from 238 out of 251 counties in the state, Ferguson was leading Culberson for second place in the Saturday primaries by 16,289 votes, and additional returns are expected to increase his lead.

Mayfield is assured of first place. Governor Neff has been re-nominated and will stand for re-election without the necessity of a run off.

DOVER'S RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED BY PRESIDENT

(By United Press.)
Washington, July 25.—The long standing dispute in the treasury department between Assistant Secretary Dover and Secretary Mellon and Revenue Commissioner Blair, was ended today when the White House announced the acceptance of Dover's resignation, effective today.

No indication as to his successor was given. Dover clashed with Mellon and Blair when he attempted to oust large numbers of democrats from the treasury department and replace them with republicans.

ALLEN AND WHITE CHUMMY

Emporia, Kan., July 25.—Governor Henry J. Allen and William Allen White, "friendly foes," treated Emporia to a display of their "Damon and Pythias" love today.

Patting each other on the back, they walked arm in arm about the campus of the state normal school here, forgetting their troubles of last week which resulted in the arrest of White on orders of his "buddy" for being a strike sympathizer.

Her Smile Was to Come Off.

One Sunday evening I was out with my best bean. We first went to the show and then for a walk. When we were about three blocks from his home we met his father. My bean tried to hide, but his father saw him and took him home. I followed, and when they came to his house, I stood there and listened to him yelling. The next day at school I made fun of him, but he only smiled and said sweetly that mine was coming, because his father had told my father.—Chicago Journal.

A New Version.

A ludicrous distortion of Scripture occurred not long ago in an English school when a small pupil wrote of the Pharisees: "The Pharisees were a mean, measly lot. One day one of them gave our Lord a penny and our Lord held it out in his hand and looked at it with scorn and said, 'Whose subscription is this?'"

JOE BULLET BUSH WITH THE YANKS

Brainerd Dispatch Man Has Seat in Press Box and Sees Leslie Perform July 16th

WAS OPPOSED BY RED FABER

Veteran Spitball Artist of Chicago White Sox Allowed Only Three Scratch Hits

With Joe Bullet Les Bush of Brainerd, in the shock troop of Yankee hurlers, a visit to New York would be as incomplete to a Brainerd man who missed seeing Les in action, as a visit to Washington without a look at the capitol or Washington monument.

As a favorite son of Brainerd, Joe Bullet has not lost his love for his old home town and wishes to be remembered to all his friends here. Weeks in advance he let John A. Hoffbauer of the Brainerd Dispatch know about the date he would take the mound and accordingly when it was set at Sunday, July 16, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffbauer journeyed from Atlanta City to New York and through the courtesy of Joe Bullet secured press box seats and hobnobbed with Col. Houston, part owner of the Yanks, who sat in a box adjoining.

It was a splendid location. To the right, a few arm lengths away, was the dugout of the Yanks and while batting practice was going on before the game, Les would walk into the press box and talk about all the people he knew in Brainerd.

It was a hard fought game. The Yanks faced Red Faber of the Chicago White Sox and Red was throwing a great spitball.

We append herewith in part Sid Mercer's review of the game as it appeared in the New York Evening Journal.

"There are only two Urbans in the American League, these being the well-known Shocker and Faber, but between them they manage to keep the Yankees thoroughly pestered. No sooner do the harassed champions get a stranglehold on one Urban than the other bobs up to annoy them.

"July 16 with a chance to regain first place, the Ruppert-Houston forces collided with Faber and were shut out with three hits. This time the veteran spitballist did not depend on his support. He supported himself by throwing the ball past the bats of the Yankees or forcing them to hit pop flies and easy grounders.

"Joe Bush did not hurl a bad game himself. Two of the seven Chicago hits registered during Joe's eight inning tenancy of the box were home runs, and three blows, launched in one inning, produced the other two counters.

"The Yankees simply cannot beat the White Sox to get into first place. This was the team that stopped them two years ago when they made a September campaign for the flag in the West. When games really mean something the Sox are poison to the noble Yank pastimers.

"Joseph Leslie Bush, of Brainerd, Minn., disappointed among others John Hoffbauer, city editor of the Brainerd Daily Dispatch. Mr. Hoffbauer sat in the press box and carefully edited the game for his paper, but couldn't feature his fellow townsman the way he wanted to.

"As soon as the Sox banked four runs for Faber the Yanks rolled over and played dead. They couldn't organize any rally on Urban, who pitched with consummate ease and grace, but nevertheless effectively. The subdued champs didn't get their first hit until the fourth inning. An error and a base on balls filled the sacks with one out, in this frame, but the usually reliable Scott whanged into a double play."

Why Bush Lost

Bush was working under a great nervous strain. His wife's father lay at the point of death in Trenton, N. J. Two transfusions of blood had been made to sustain his ebbing life. Immediately after the game Bush raced in a taxicab to the Pennsylvania station and took the train for Trenton to join his wife, who was at the bedside of her father.

"It's the first game I lost at the Polo grounds," said Bush to his Brainerd friends.

Won Seven in a Row

Bush early in the season made a Yank record which will stand for some time to come when he won seven games in a row and was going like a house on fire. In spite of all the praise accorded him and occasional criticism, Bush maintains his poise and has never lost his head.

"Bush Day" at Philadelphia Philadelphia fans always carry a warm spot in their hearts for Bush. In the near future they will stage a

YOUNG FLIERS TO COMPETE IN GILDER RACERS

From left to right: Harvey C. Karcher, Otto C. Kopper and Edmund Tallen, all students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who sailed on the S. S. La Saviole, taking with them their Gilder which they will pilot in the races at Clermont-Farand, France, early in August. The Gilder is of their own construction and accepted by authorities as most practical of all American built machines of that type.

"Bush Day" in their city when Bush takes the mound there.

Home in Oak Lane

At a cost of $26,000 Bush has just completed a splendid home in Oak Lane, one of the most exclusive suburbs of Philadelphia.

His wife is a most accomplished and charming young woman and takes a lively interest in his playing. At most games she has a box seat with Mrs. Babe Ruth. The Bush home previously was in Philadelphia but because of its proximity to a car line did not offer that quietude which is necessary to recuperate nerves, as is now afforded in their elegant Oak Lane home.

A Genial Host

Onaturday afternoon after the 12 inning game in which Carl May waged an unsuccessful battle against the climbing White Sox, Mr. Bush entertained his Brainerd friends at supper at the Palais d'Royal on Broadway and then was host at a theatre party at the Amsterdam where Flo Ziegfeld's "Follies" had launched its 1922 edition.

One of the features of the review was the "bull pen" of the Yankees where three bench warmers were discussing the probability of being called on the mound.

The "Follies" carries the prettiest choruses in America. Will Rogers, former film star, has an act all by himself and twirls his lariats while he takes up Yankee philosophy.

"I thought of starting up a cab line," said Rogers, "but they've run out of colors."

"I hear they're going to run young

Roosevelt for senator. If he's only half as good as his illustrious father he's twice as good as any other candidate," said Rogers.

Remembered His Parents

As Bush left New York Sunday evening, his parting injunction was to remember him to all his Brainerd friends and to also call on his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bush.

"I was so sorry to hear of John Mahlum dying," said Les. "I thought as much of him as a brother."

Decide Golf Championship

Fargo, N. D., July 25.—The amateur golf championship of North Dakota will be decided at the Country Club links this week.

The men play 36 holes for the qualifying round today and the women qualify tomorrow.

Semi-finals will be held Thursday and the championship Saturday. Prizes have been arranged.

Official Count of Primary Ballots

Bismarck, N. D., July 25.—The canvassing board meets at the capitol today to make official count of the primary ballots. Two days will probably be needed to finish the work.

Amend Bonus Law

Mandan, N. D., July 25.—The state bonus law must be amended before eastern investors will be justified in the purchase of certificates to enable immediate payment in the opinion of J. F. Sullivan, local attorney, a member of the committee appointed by the state convention of the American Legion to promote sale of bonus warrants.

The industrial commission signed a tentative contract with the Minneapolis Loan and Trust company and other companies for the purchase of $6,000,000 worth of bonus certificates at 18 per cent discount.

A suit was then instituted to test the legality of this action and the state supreme court held the contract invalid.

In its decision, the court held that the industrial commission had authority to exercise certain discretion in the payment of bonuses. For example, they may if they see fit, pay certain certificates in advance of the others, but they cannot contract to exercise that discretion in any particular manner that would be binding upon them.

This, Mr. Sullivan says, prevents their contracting to pay such certificates as may be purchased at any particular time or in any particular order which would make it impossible for the industrial commission or eastern investors to deal with any one having control thereof with reference thereto.

WAS OPPOSED BY RED FABER

Veteran Spitball Artist of Chicago White Sox Allowed Only Three Scratch Hits

With Joe Bullet Les Bush of Brainerd, in the shock troop of Yankee hurlers, a visit to New York would be as incomplete to a Brainerd man who missed seeing Les in action, as a visit to Washington without a look at the capitol or Washington monument.

As a favorite son of Brainerd, Joe Bullet has not lost his love for his old home town and wishes to be remembered to all his friends here. Weeks in advance he let John A. Hoffbauer of the Brainerd Dispatch know about the date he would take the mound and accordingly when it was set at Sunday, July 16, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffbauer journeyed from Atlantic City to New York and through the courtesy of Joe Bullet secured press box seats and hobnobbed with Col. Houston, part owner of the Yanks, who sat in a box adjoining.

It was a splendid location. To the right, a few arm lengths away, was the dugout of the Yanks and while batting practice was going on before the game, Les would walk into the press box and talk about all the people he knew in Brainerd.

It was a hard fought game. The Yanks faced Red Faber of the Chicago White Sox and Red was throwing a great spitball.

We append herewith in part Sid Mercer's review of the game as it appeared in the New York Evening Journal.

"There are only two Urbans in the American League, these being the well-known Shocker and Faber, but between them they manage to keep the Yankees thoroughly pestered. No sooner do the harassed champions get a stranglehold on one Urban than the other bobs up to annoy them.

"July 16 with a chance to regain first place, the Ruppert-Houston forces collided with Faber and were shut out with three hits. This time the veteran spitballist did not depend on his support. He supported himself by throwing the ball past the bats of the Yankees or forcing them to hit pop flies and easy grounders.

"Joe Bush did not hurl a bad game himself. Two of the seven Chicago hits registered during Joe's eight inning tenancy of the box were home runs, and three blows, launched in one inning, produced the other two counters.

"The Yankees simply cannot beat the White Sox to get into first place. This was the team that stopped them two years ago when they made a September campaign for the flag in the West. When games really mean something the Sox are poison to the noble Yank pastimers.

"Joseph Leslie Bush, of Brainerd, Minn., disappointed among others John Hoffbauer, city editor of the Brainerd Daily Dispatch. Mr. Hoffbauer sat in the press box and carefully edited the game for his paper, but couldn't feature his fellow townsman the way he wanted to.

"As soon as the Sox banked four runs for Faber the Yanks rolled over and played dead. They couldn't organize any rally on Urban, who pitched with consummate ease and grace, but nevertheless effectively. The subdued champs didn't get their first hit until the fourth inning. An error and a base on balls filled the sacks with one out, in this frame, but the usually reliable Scott whanged into a double play."

Why Bush Lost

Bush was working under a great nervous strain. His wife's father lay at the point of death in Trenton, N. J. Two transfusions of blood had been made to sustain his ebbing life. Immediately after the game Bush raced in a taxicab to the Pennsylvania station and took the train for Trenton to join his wife, who was at the bedside of her father.

"It's the first game I lost at the Polo grounds", said Bush to his Brainerd friends.

Won Seven in a Row

Bush early in the season made a Yank record which will stand for some time to come when he won seven games in a row and was going like a house on fire. In spite of all the praise accorded him and occasional criticism, Bush maintains his poise and has never lost his head.

"Bush Day" at Philadelphia Philadelphia fans always carry a warm spot in their hearts for Bush. In the near future they will stage a

The Gilder is of their own construction and accepted by authorities as most practical of all American built machines of that type.

Home in Oak Lane

At a cost of $26,000 Bush has just completed a splendid home in Oak Lane, one of the most exclusive suburbs of Philadelphia.

His wife is a most accomplished and charming young woman and takes a lively interest in his playing. At most games she has a box seat with Mrs. Babe Ruth. The Bush home previously was in Philadelphia but because of its proximity to a car line did not offer that quietude which is necessary to recuperate nerves, as is now afforded in their elegant Oak Lane home.

A Genial Host

Onaturday afternoon after the 12 inning game in which Carl May waged an unsuccessful battle against the climbing White Sox, Mr. Bush entertained his Brainerd friends at supper at the Palais d'Royal on Broadway and then was host at a theatre party at the Amsterdam where Flo Ziegfeld's "Follies" had launched its 1922 edition.

One of the features of the review was the "bull pen" of the Yankees where three bench warmers were discussing the probability of being called on the mound.

The "Follies" carries the prettiest choruses in America. Will Rogers, former film star, has an act all by himself and twirls his lariat while he takes up Yankee philosophy.

"I thought of starting up a cab line", said Rogers, "but they've run out of colors".

"I hear they're going to run young

Roosevelt for senator. If he's only half as good as his illustrious father he's twice as good as any other candidate", said Rogers.

Remembered His Parents

As Bush left New York Sunday evening, his parting injunction was to remember him to all his Brainerd friends and to also call on his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bush.

"I was so sorry to hear of John Mahlum dying," said Les. "I thought as much of him as a brother".

Amend Bonus Law

Mandan, N. D., July 25.—The state bonus law must be amended before eastern investors will be justified in the purchase of certificates to enable immediate payment in the opinion of J. F. Sullivan, local attorney, a member of the committee appointed by the state convention of the American Legion to promote sale of bonus warrants.

The industrial commission signed a tentative contract with the Minneapolis Loan and Trust company and other companies for the purchase of $6,000,000 worth of bonus certificates at 18 per cent discount.

A suit was then instituted to test the legality of this action and the state supreme court held the contract invalid.

In its decision, the court held that the industrial commission had authority to exercise certain discretion in the payment of bonuses. For example, they may if they see fit, pay certain certificates in advance of the others, but they cannot contract to exercise that discretion in any particular manner that would be binding upon them.

This, Mr. Sullivan says, prevents their contracting to pay such certificates as may be purchased at any particular time or in any particular order which would make it impossible for the industrial commission or eastern investors to deal with any one having control thereof with reference thereto.

A LIVING WAGE

THE first charge against industry must be a wage sufficiently high to guarantee workers the possibility of living up to the American standard of life. Just how this is to be made possible is for employers to decide, and while the average American may be unable to show just how it is to be done by arguments from political economy or by constructive suggestions as to business management, nevertheless he reaffirms his demand that labor be paid a living wage. And whenever the American people are assured that a wage offered a workman is not sufficient to provide for the common needs of himself and his family, they will insist that in some way such conditions be remedied. In assuming such an attitude, the public does not suggest to the employer, whether individual or corporate, that it is qualified to run such business, nor does it infer that it would wish to control and direct such business if it had the ability to do so; these details of management it is willing to leave with the man or the corporation, while it reiterates its demand that the worker must be given a living wage. Nor is the public sure what a living wage is, until it has measured what is offered alongside of the costs of living which must be met out of the wage paid. But when the public has measured these two together it will insist that a wage must be sufficiently high to enable the toiler to provide for himself and family those simple requirements without which life cannot be lived in health, happiness and hope.

But there is an argument which is commonly used that runs to this effect: "How can an industry pay a living wage if the profits of that industry are not large enough to make possible such a wage?" Senator Cummins, the author of the Esch-Cummins law, who has been much criticised for some of the provisions of that law, has this to say in reply to such a question, "The men are entitled to fair wages no matter whether the enterprise is profitable or not." It is not for the public to solve the question as to how this is to be done, the public lays no claim to a solution of the problem, it is content to leave that solution with the leaders of industry who are supposed to be able to find answers to industrial problems, and hold their positions only by the right of finding such solutions. But, without any consideration of stocks, whether actual or watered; without any consideration of profits, whether productive of millionaires or not even equal to paying the cost of operation, the public will still insist that an American workman be secured a living wage. And this attitude is based on a position fundamentally right, which is this: Life owes every man who is willing to work a decent living; individuals do not exist for the sake of the state but the state for the benefit of individuals; workers do not live for the sole end of being the tools of industry, but industry exists, or ought to exist, to serve men. For the vital question remains: What shall it profit the United States if it gain industrial supremacy and lose the innate dignity of its citizenship?

What then are some of the facts in the present controversy? The highest wage allowed under the new scale would be $1,724 and the lowest $563. But 7 per cent of the maximum wage is to be taken off because of accident, sickness and other causes, which reduce the wage of 100,000 men to $523, and 250,000 men to a wage of $800.

Wage earners claim that $1,150 is the lowest wage upon which a family may be raised in decency in America today. This is fifty cents per hour, from which 7 per cent is deducted for inevitable losses. And what is the amount which may be considered a living wage? An employers' association, the Industrial Conference Board, puts it at $1,400, while the Department of Labor makes substantially the same estimate. And on the basis of such figures the fair-minded American public is going to attempt to see, by dividing up such an income over the various requirements of a family, for food, shelter, clothing and other things, just how far such a wage will go in providing the worker with a living according to American standards. Perhaps the public has been inclined to say that, inasmuch as the farmer has suffered deflation and the business man has taken his loss, the railroad workers must accept a reduction; but the public will have something to say about a reduction which reduces the worker to the position in life which, to quote Senator Borah, is "like peonage." Not for one moment, when the truth is known, will the American people stand for a wage which changes the hopeful and happy American wage earner into a sullen, soul-less individual, heartlessly yielding to the fictitious slogan, "Prosperity through re-construction." What is the value of an insurance policy due 12 months hence, in the eyes of a man who sees his wife and family suffering now for want of the common things that make life worth living?

HUGHES SCORES AGAIN

ACTING for President Harding, who had been made the arbitrator in the Tacna-Arica controversy which has through a long period threatened to lead to conflict between Chile and Peru, Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, was able to announce on Friday at the closing session of the Chilean-Peruvian conference that an amicable adjustment had been arrived at. This is another victory for the Harding administration, following hard upon the successful Washington conference wherein world powers came to a better understanding. The purpose which underlies such conferences as expressed by the Secretary of State is that of establishing a reign of justice which will result in abiding tranquility.

In this conference, as in the earlier one in which so many great nations were represented, it has been proved that "the contacts of honorable and reasonable men" go a long way towards erasing the disputed questions.

Suspensions often break down in a conference where the two sides of the question are frankly presented by the representatives of the opposing factions. When the other man's point of view is understood it is easier to come to an agreement. Secretary Hughes seems to be gifted with the ability to hold down the men at the conference table to the essential questions and to limit the agenda to what may be disposed of. Perhaps, even in Europe, conferences would yield better results, if the subjects for discussion were less numerous, and a solution was sought for one question at a time. The Western World will hope that this victory for arbitration may result in the conference method of dealing with all complications in Latin America to the end that peace may be assured the Western Hemisphere.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

MAY BE ON ITS DEATHBED

BY HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

The Principal Questions to be Passed Upon by Third General Assembly League of Nations September 4 Are:

- 1—Admission of Germany and Hungary to the League.
- 2—Canada's proposal to suppress the famous Article Ten, of United States Senate Pains.
- 3—The adoption of Esperanto as an International League.
- 4—The adoption of a definite league plan for the reduction of land armaments.
- 5—The control of the opium traffic and the limitation of opium production.
- 6—Control of White Slave traffic in children.
- 7—The deportation of women and children in Turkey and adjacent countries.
- 8—The establishment of the League's international health organization.
- 9—The carrying on of the technical work referred to the League by the Genoa conference, including finances.
- 10—The expatriation of Russian refugees at Constantinople.
- 11—International co-operation.
- 12—Various amendments to the covenant especially relative to obligatory arbitration.
- 13—Increasing the size of the Council and the election of the non-permanent members of that body.

Rome, July 25.—On the Third General Assembly of the League of Nations which meets this year at Geneva, on Sept. 4, depends the future role of the League itself.

It will depend on this meeting of the assembly whether the League shall be developed into something of the big powerful, international organization that its founders intended or whether it shall be allowed to degenerate merely into a routine, bureaucratic organization for handling certain international technical questions and disputes, but without authority, prestige or any great future.

Admittedly, the League to date has not been what its founders and supporters hoped and wished it would be.

When the first general assembly of the League was held at Geneva in September, 1920, it developed that the covenant as hastily drawn up at the peace conference at Paris was not the perfect instrument with which to meet the needs of the world as it now exists.

From the very first, therefore, the members of the league, faced the necessity of modifying the covenant and the league itself.

However, the first assembly of the League of Nations in 1920, largely at the instance of Balfour for England, Viviani for France and Titttoni for Italy took the attitude that the League was still very much of an experiment; that the wise thing to do was to wait a year and give the league and the covenant a thorough tryout.

As a consequence, everything tending to modify the League and the covenant in order to make the two more workable, was adjourned in mass until the second assembly in 1921.

When the second general assembly of the League came on in September, 1921, it found the big powers no more ready to go ahead and develop the League than they had been the year previous.

In the meantime, however, a new factor had developed—the Washington conference the following November.

None of the big powers were certain just what the latter might develop. Hence, the big powers asserted, it was again wisdom to wait still another year, before altering the League.

As a consequence, for the second time, virtually everything intended to change or modify either the League or the covenant was again postponed until the third assembly of the League now approaching.

The September assembly of the League this year must be decisive for the League's future role. The big nations must face squarely the issue either of developing the league or else merely relegate it to the ranks of a bureaucratic, technical organization. Stalling, it is declared, is no longer possible, especially as the smaller nations, who want the League to be a real, big, world-wide factor, will not permit longer to have the decision delayed and will not continue the heavy expense of participation in and maintenance of the League unless the latter is going to fulfill some of the hopes which the smaller nations cherished of it.

If the big powers refuse to give it the authority to go ahead and at the same time refuse to take a definite stand as to limiting the activities of the League, the result will be the same as though the latter decision had actually been taken. The league will go down and out.

In a general way, however, league supporters are hopeful. They point out that the Washington conference fell far short of the attainments that were hoped of it; the Genoa conference fell far shorter, and the indications are that the Hague conference will dash the last hope of readjusting the world by means of international conference. They figure that the period of experiments has passed both for the League and for other methods of international co-operation and that the consensus of the world will be in favor of the League.

Blame Sand on Road—or Speed?—Turning out for another machine on a broad, smooth road, the car hit loose sand at the road-bed edge, skidded completely around and shot into the ditch and through a 4-strand wire fence on the opposite side, says an account of an automobile accident on a highway.

Down With the Speeder—With summer upon us again and automobile traffic on the increase, the spotlight of pitiless publicity should be turned with full force upon the speed maniac, the most dangerous of all irresponsible animals. Wage earners claim that $1,150 is the lowest wage upon which a family may be raised in decency in America today. This is fifty cents per hour, from which 7 per cent is deducted for inevitable losses. And what is the amount which may be considered a living wage? An employers' association, the Industrial Conference Board, puts it at $1,400, while the Department of Labor makes substantially the same estimate. And on the basis of such figures the fair-minded American public is going to attempt to see, by dividing up such an income over the various requirements of a family, for food, shelter, clothing and other things, just how far such a wage will go in providing the worker with a living according to American standards. Perhaps the public has been inclined to say that, inasmuch as the farmer has suffered deflation and the business man has taken his loss, the railroad workers must accept a reduction; but the public will have something to say about a reduction which reduces the worker to the position in life which, to quote Senator Borah, is "like peonage." Not for one moment, when the truth is known, will the American people stand for a wage which changes the hopeful and happy American wage earner into a sullen, soul-less individual, heartlessly yielding to the fictitious slogan, "Prosperity through re-construction." What is the value of an insurance policy due 12 months hence, in the eyes of a man who sees his wife and family suffering now for want of the common things that make life worth living?

HUGHES SCORES AGAIN

ACTING for President Harding, who had been made the arbitrator in the Tacna-Arica controversy which has through a long period threatened to lead to conflict between Chile and Peru, Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, was able to announce on Friday at the closing session of the Chilean-Peruvian conference that an amicable adjustment had been arrived at. This is another victory for the Harding administration, following hard upon the successful Washington conference wherein world powers came to a better understanding. The purpose which underlies such conferences as expressed by the Secretary of State is that of establishing a reign of justice which will result in abiding tranquility.

In this conference, as in the earlier one in which so many great nations were represented, it has been proved that "the contacts of honorable and reasonable men" go a long way towards erasing the disputed questions.

Suspensions often break down in a conference where the two sides of the question are frankly presented by the representatives of the opposing factions. When the other man's point of view is understood it is easier to come to an agreement. Secretary Hughes seems to be gifted with the ability to hold down the men at the conference table to the essential questions and to limit the agenda to what may be disposed of. Perhaps, even in Europe, conferences would yield better results, if the subjects for discussion were less numerous, and a solution was sought for one question at a time. The Western World will hope that this victory for arbitration may result in the conference method of dealing with all complications in Latin America to the end that peace may be assured the Western Hemisphere.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

MAY BE ON ITS DEATHBED

BY HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

The Principal Questions to be Passed Upon by Third General Assembly League of Nations September 4 Are:

- 1—Admission of Germany and Hungary to the League.
- 2—Canada's proposal to suppress the famous Article Ten, of United States Senate Fams.
- 3—The adoption of Esperanto as an International League.
- 4—The adoption of a definite league plan for the reduction of land armaments.
- 5—The control of the opium traffic and the limitation of opium production.
- 6—Control of White Slave traffic in children.
- 7—The deportation of women and children in Turkey and adjacent countries.
- 8—The establishment of the League's international health organization.
- 9—The carrying on of the technical work referred to the League by the Genoa conference, including finances.
- 10—The expatriation of Russian refugees at Constantinople.
- 11—International co-operation.
- 12—Various amendments to the covenant especially relative to obligatory arbitration.
- 13—Increasing the size of the Council and the election of the non-permanent members of that body.

Rome, July 25.—On the Third General Assembly of the League of Nations which meets this year at Geneva, on Sept. 4, depends the future role of the League itself.

It will depend on this meeting of the assembly whether the League shall be developed into something of the big powerful, international organization that its founders intended or whether it shall be allowed to degenerate merely into a routine, bureaucratic organization for handling certain international technical questions and disputes, but without authority, prestige or any great future.

Admittedly, the League to date has not been what its founders and supporters hoped and wished it would be.

When the first general assembly of the League was held at Geneva in September, 1920, it developed that the covenant as hastily drawn up at the peace conference at Paris was not the perfect instrument with which to meet the needs of the world as it now exists.

From the very first, therefore, the members of the league, faced the necessity of modifying the covenant and the league itself.

However, the first assembly of the League of Nations in 1920, largely at the instance of Balfour for England, Viviani for France and Titttoni for Italy, took the attitude that the League was still very much of an experiment; that the wise thing to do was to wait a year and give the league and the covenant a thorough tryout.

As a consequence, everything tending to modify the League and the covenant in order to make the two more workable, was adjourned in mass until the second assembly in 1921.

When the second general assembly of the League came on in September, 1921, it found the big powers no more ready to go ahead and develop the League than they had been the year previous.

In the meantime, however, a new factor had developed—the Washington conference the following November.

None of the big powers were certain just what the latter might develop. Hence, the big powers asserted, it was again wisdom to wait still another year, before altering the League.

As a consequence, for the second time, virtually everything intended to change or modify either the League or the covenant was again postponed until the third assembly of the League now approaching.

The September assembly of the League this year must be decisive for the League's future role. The big nations must face squarely the issue either of developing the league or else merely relegate it to the ranks of a bureaucratic, technical organization. Stalling, it is declared, is no longer possible, especially as the smaller nations, who want the League to be a real, big, world-wide factor, will not permit longer to have the decision delayed and will not continue the heavy expense of participation in and maintenance of the League unless the latter is going to fulfill some of the hopes which the smaller nations cherished of it.

If the big powers refuse to give it the authority to go ahead and at the same time refuse to take a definite stand as to limiting the activities of the League, the result will be the same as though the latter decision had actually been taken. The league will go down and out.

In a general way, however, league supporters are hopeful. They point out that the Washington conference fell far short of the attainments that were hoped of it; the Genoa conference fell far shorter, and the indications are that the Hague conference will dash the last hope of readjusting the world by means of international conference. They figure that the period of experiments has passed both for the League and for other methods of international co-operation and that the consensus of the world will be in favor of the League.

MAKE SAFE ROADS SAFER

Grim Reaper Walt—and Rides—Old Man Death with his scythe may sit in waiting at the side of the old narrow road with his traps in the steep, soft banks hidden by tall weeds, but—

On the broad, modern highway, he rides—in the car of the driver who cannot resist the temptation to "step on 'er."—Exchange.

Blame Sand on Road—or Speed—Turning out for another machine on a broad, smooth road, the car hit loose sand at the road-bed edge, skidded completely around and shot into the ditch and through a 4-strand wire fence on the opposite side, says an account of an automobile accident on a highway.

The small car carrying seven people turned over three times when it struck a spot on the road where recent rains had deposited a small bed of sand, reads another account.

Sand or speeding to blame? You decide.—Highway News.

Down With the Speeder—With summer upon us again and automobile traffic on the increase, the spotlight of pitiless publicity should be turned with full force upon the speed maniac, the most dangerous of all irresponsible animals. Fortunately, they are not so numerous as they were. Heavy fines and jail sentences have checked a portion of this ruthless terror. But even one is too many to be left at large. Not since the early days of Indian butcheries has there been such a menace to public safety. Time and superior force have eliminated the Indian as a menace. The speeder's turn comes next, and with no greater mercy than he shows to his helpless victims.—Elysian Enterprise.

When liquid air, containing from 40 to 50 per cent of oxygen, is mixed with powdered charcoal it forms an explosive which is said to be comparable in power to dynamite, and can be exploded by means of a detonator. This explosive has been tested in coal mines. The liquid air evaporates so rapidly that the explosive cannot be stored, but must be used within a few minutes after it is prepared.

HARD TO HURL SLOW BALL THAT IS GOOD

It takes ability to throw a slow ball. This delivery, generally thought a matter of easy accomplishment, is extremely difficult. Fast ball pitchers have a hard time of it when they try to serve a slow ball. Curve ball pitchers are likewise troubled by the slow one.

The average pitcher falls on his slow ball because of the way he delivers it. He tries to disguise it and goes through various extra motions to make the batsman believe the fast ball or curve is about to be delivered. Smart batsmen have long since come to recognize the coming of a slow ball by the extra effort on part of the pitcher to disguise the delivery.

Still, a large number of pitchers maintain that a slow ball, whether recognized or not, is most important as it throws the batsman off his stride and makes him look for it.

FAWCETT GETS STATE SHOOT

Has Added $1,000 Extra Prize Money to the Big Shoot to be Held at Breezy Point in 1923

"The Sportsmen's Review" of Cincinnati, Ohio, in its July 22nd issue contains a fine writeup of the Fourth of July shoot held at Breezy Point. In this regard it may be mentioned that Captain W. H. Fawcett has added $1,000 prize money to the state shoot to be staged at Breezy Point in 1923.

The "Sportsmen's Review" article follows:

"The Fourth of July tournament put on by Captain W. H. Fawcett at his Breezy Point Lodge at Pequot, Minn., was a huge success. Captain Fawcett, who while attending the Minnesota State tournament, was successful in winning the amateur double championship of the state, was elected president of the State Trapshooting Association, and also got the Minnesota State tournament for Breezy Point for 1923.

"Incidentally he suggested to the shooters that if any number of boys would attend a tournament at Pequot, he would gladly add $10 for each participant who shot through the entire program. After the last shot was fired in the tournament we counted twenty-one who shot through the entire program, and H. Kalland of Brainerd was high with 186 out of 199, which consisted of 175 singles and 12 pairs, a very remarkable score under the weather's conditions.

"A. Kalland, his brother, recorded second best score with 184, and Captain Fawcett third with 180."

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETS WEDNESDAY

Regular Semi-Monthly Gathering. Secretary Will Read Report for Period Ending July 1

MEMBERSHIP MOTTO ADOPTED

Important Matters Pertaining to Future of Organization to be Discussed that Night

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The secretary's report for the period ending July 1st will be read and important matters pertaining to the future of the Chamber of Commerce will be taken up at this meeting.

The membership motto which was unofficially adopted at the last regular meeting, if adopted individually would mean much to the future success of the Chamber.

The motto is as follows: "I will not criticize or condemn the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce for failure to get results unless I myself have personally given time, thought and effort to help get results." This also suggests the question, "What kind of Chamber of Commerce would we have if every member were like me?"

INTER-SECTIONAL GAME AT ST. CLOUD

St. Cloud Baseball Team and New Ulm, Latter Team Claiming Championship Southern Minnesota

NEW ULM AFTER STATE CHAMP.

Sunday's Game, July 30, Is Expected to Draw Record Crowd of Season to St. Cloud

(By P. M. Weyrens, Manager St. Cloud Team)

Next Sunday, July 30, the St. Cloud baseball team will engage the New Ulm nine in the first big inter-sectional game to be played at St. Cloud. New Ulm is claiming the championship of southern Minnesota, and if the team defeats St. Cloud, will claim the state championship.

St. Cloud is recognized as one of the fastest teams in the state. The outfit has won 12 out of 14 games. The only team that has been able to turn the trick on St. Cloud is Foley. The Saints have defeated Young America, last year's state champions, twice. They defeated Glenwood and the Vander Bies, one of the strongest semi-pro teams in the Northwest.

Next Sunday's game at St. Cloud is expected to draw the record crowd of the season, and it is expected to be one of the finest games this year. The game will start at three o'clock.

New Ulm was given a substantial guarantee to make the trip to the Granite City, but the St. Cloud management believed it worth while, in an effort to give the real baseball fans of Central Minnesota the best attraction possible.

Cricket.

The earliest mention of the game of cricket is in the writing of one John Derrick, who in 1593 wrote that "he and his fellows did runne and play at cricket." But in the Bodleian library at Oxford there is an old picture of a monk bowling a ball to another monk, who is about to strike it, and the date of that is 200 years earlier.

Old moose shed the big, shovel-like antlers early in January, younger ones weeks later. By the middle of May the new growth of horn protrudes less than an inch from the skull. In three months the development of the 70-pound shovel, often six feet across, is entirely completed.

"Incidentally he suggested to the shooters that if any number of boys would attend a tournament at Pequot, he would gladly add $10 for each participant who shot through the entire program. After the last shot was fired in the tournament we counted twenty-one who shot through the entire program, and H. Kalland of Brainerd was high with 186 out of 199, which consisted of 175 singles and 12 pairs, a very remarkable score under the weather's conditions.

"A. Kalland, his brother, recorded second best score with 184, and Captain Fawcett third with 180."

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETS WEDNESDAY

Regular Semi-Monthly Gathering, Secretary Will Read Report for Period Ending July 1

MEMBERSHIP MOTTO ADOPTED

Important Matters Pertaining to Future of Organization to be Discussed that Night

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The secretary's report for the period ending July 1st will be read and important matters pertaining to the future of the Chamber of Commerce will be taken up at this meeting.

The membership motto which was unofficially adopted at the last regular meeting, if adopted individually would mean much to the future success of the Chamber.

The motto is as follows: "I will not criticize or condemn the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce for failure to get results unless I myself have personally given time, thought and effort to help get results." This also suggests the question, "What kind of Chamber of Commerce would we have if every member were like me?"

INTER-SECTIONAL GAME AT ST. CLOUD

St. Cloud Baseball Team and New Ulm, Latter Team Claiming Championship Southern Minnesota

NEW ULM AFTER STATE CHAMP. Sunday's Game, July 30, Is Expected to Draw Record Crowd of Season to St. Cloud

(By P. M. Weyrens, Manager St. Cloud Team)

Next Sunday, July 30, the St. Cloud baseball team will engage the New Ulm nine in the first big inter-sectional game to be played at St. Cloud. New Ulm is claiming the championship of southern Minnesota, and if the team defeats St. Cloud, will claim the state championship.

St. Cloud is recognized as one of the fastest teams in the state. The outfit has won 12 out of 14 games. The only team that has been able to turn the trick on St. Cloud is Foley. The Saints have defeated Young America, last year's state champions, twice. They defeated Glenwood and the Vander Bies, one of the strongest semi-pro teams in the Northwest.

Next Sunday's game at St. Cloud is expected to draw the record crowd of the season, and it is expected to be one of the finest games this year. The game will start at three o'clock.

New Ulm was given a substantial guarantee to make the trip to the Granite City, but the St. Cloud management believed it worth while, in an effort to give the real baseball fans of Central Minnesota the best attraction possible.

Cricket.

The earliest mention of the game of cricket is in the writing of one John Derrick, who in 1593 wrote that "he and his fellows did runne and play at cricket." But in the Bodleian library at Oxford there is an old picture of a monk bowling a ball to another monk, who is about to strike it, and the date of that is 200 years earlier.

The Change.

"He was an awfully kind boss," said the former stenographer, "so considerate, so thoughtful, so manly and generous. And then, heaven forgive me, married him!"

Presbyterian Ladies Aid

The Ladies Aid of the First Presbyterian church will meet in the church on Wednesday afternoon, July 26th. The quarterly report will be read. A large attendance is desired.

Week End Party

Judge and Mrs. Walter F. Wieland and Mr. and Mrs. Mal D. Clark were guests for the week end of Judge C. W. Stanton in Bemidji.

Congregational Ladies' Aid

The Ladies' Aid of the First Congregational church will be entertained next Wednesday afternoon at North Long Lake by Mrs. J. P. Anderson and Mrs. Mons Mahlum at the summer home of Mrs. Anderson. Those having no way of getting out, please phone Mrs. H. J. Wilson. An invitation is extended to all the members of the church.

CHILDREN MAY LURE PIUS XI FROM VATICAN

By ALICE ROHE
(Written for the United Press)

Rome, (By Rome)—Will a little child lead Pope Pius XI from his voluntary prison in the Vatican?

Will children accomplish that which diplomats and governments have failed to do since the Papal State lost its temporal power in 1872?

These are questions which are being asked in Vatican circles with growing insistence.

And if this breaking down of a historic tradition occurs, America will be the cause.

The present Pope's broad humanitarianism and his fondness for children, especially, are as well known as his erudition and his understanding of world affairs.

When Edward L. Hearn came to Rome recently as head of the Knights of Columbus in the Eternal City, His Holiness Pope Pius XI questioned him at length about practical humanitarian work.

Pope Pius XI desire to make his occupancy of the Papal throne one which will always be remembered in its social and moral humanitarian features is frankly admitted.

A plan of the Knights of Columbus which brought forth the papal enthusiasm at once is the establishment of playgrounds—real American playgrounds in the densely populated districts of Rome.

When the American playgrounds system had been explained to His Holiness, with its shower bath, sanitary and recreational features, his interest was intense.

He refused the assistance of an interpreter and insisted that Hearn talk to him in English although his replies were in Italian. The Pope speaks English, but with hesitancy.

"But that is one of the greatest steps in moral and social welfare," His Holiness is quoted as saying. "Its influence is inestimable."

Dedicated to Pope

When it was explained that upon the completion of the playgrounds they would be dedicated to him and given to the public in his name, Pope Pius XI's exclamation of pleasure set whippers of conjecture astir.

His Holiness is said to have exclaimed: "Then I will come myself to bless them! I will leave the Vatican to give my benediction upon this great work in public morals and health."

So keenly interested did the Pope become that in looking over the plans, he suddenly asked:

"But could you not place a playground here—I have a piece of ground which you could use. It is where I could look out from my window and watch the children at play."

Ascending the papal throne in the midst of international tangles, whose solution is one of his great interests, the fact that Pius XI finds time to consider the non-political features of social welfare marks a dominant characteristic in the Pontiff.

My first impression of Pope Pius XI at a recent audience was of a man of unusually keen perceptive powers. Of the three Popes with whom I have had audiences, the present Pontiff radiates the greatest alertness. In the audience room there were five Americans together. Coming to us, the Holy Father stopped and inquired, "Americans?"

With an apparent air of not scrutinizing, the Pope sees everything.

Pope's Love of Children

His love of children was greatly in evidence on this occasion. Near me was a mother with a little boy. The Pope stopped and talked, his hand on the child's head, then he blessed it and passed on. Further along was a mother with two tiny children. When she passed on tears of emotion were streaming down the woman's cheeks.

The devotion of Pope Pius XI to children and their welfare is considered good grounds for believing his expressed intention of leaving Vatican upon the dedication of the Knights of Columbus playgrounds.

The rumor that Pope Pius XI is to leave his "prison walls" recurs with persistent regularity. It was believed that he would break over those traditional barriers which have held his predecessors so long during their recent eucharistic conference.

There is now a firm belief in the minds of Roman observers that the present Pope will take the historic step.

If he does so upon the dedication of the playgrounds established in his name by the Knights of Columbus in behalf of the children of Rome, it will establish more profoundly than ever the great respect and love which his devotion to children has inspired.

The acquisition of satisfactory grounds for playground centers met a check for which the American way of doing things was quite unprepared. The deal was practically concluded when it was fortunately discovered that the city had a right to run three roads through the property. Of course all plans for this site were off.

The Knights of Columbus plan to institute six playgrounds in Rome and one will be located so that the Pope's great desire to look from his Vatican window and see the children at play may be gratified.

traveler who reflects the traveling public's opinion of the strike situation. "The railroads are operating under the greatest difficulty and the service is hardly on a par with that afforded a shipment of cattle in days gone by."

"The trains are filthy, dirty and show the effect of the strike at a glance, no water in the water coolers—and in many cases the companies are being compelled to use the old-time equipment—with its smoking lamps, two-thirds of which are not provided with oil."

"The crack train of the Northern Pacific was doing local work and every time we made a stop the passengers prepared for a long stay as the result of the anticipated breakdown."

"There is no condemnation of the strikers—every one seems to understand the injustice of the companies' demands and are in sympathy with the workers."

"Of course we get mad when we find it impossible to make our routing," said a traveling salesman, "but we realize that you strikers are not to blame and our anger naturally is for the stubborn owners of the railroads who we are learning have less reason for cutting wages than was supposed."

"An amusing situation exists on the through trains. The Pullman porters are 'attempting' to keep the coaches clean. Armed with an ordinary whip broom, the dusky servant progresses from car to car, carefully flicking the dust and an occasional cinder from the arms of each seat—a faint smile flickers over his ebony features as the passengers prepare for a good cleaning—and the smile becomes the passenger's as Sambo travels to the next seat barely disturbing the refuse which clusters up the aisles."

"The hot thirsty patrons are constantly pressing the little lever on the water cooler and the cooler seems to say, 'nothing doing till the boys win out.' The disappointed ones lick their parched lips and breath a prayer or a curse for those responsible for these unnecessary conditions."

"In the smoking compartments the strike situation is cursed and dis-cussed and the mouse in the corner gathers many little sidelights which are worthy of record."

"A big fat drummer lighted a cigar and settled himself to suffer in silence. An erratic little pigmy pushed the curtains aside and squeezed his minute form into the unoccupied portion of the seat occupied by the B. F. D.

"Why in H— don't Harding or Congress or somebody do something to put an end to this row?" snapped the dwarf.

"As the famous Rube Goldberg says, 'that's a foolish question,' growled the fat one. "Don't you see the game of pass the buck the president, congress and most of the governors are playing? Why man, if 70 per cent of the senate weren't up for re-election this fall as well as every congressman and governor, they'd make short work of these strikes, I'll tell the world, but congress is trying to pass the buck to the president on the bonus question—the president is trying to pass the buck to the governors on the strike question and the governors who are nearest to the voting workers are looking for a way out—in vain."

"Boy, if these workers knew the power they held over the officials of this country from the president down at this time, there would be some house-cleaning next November."

"The runt had fallen asleep and the big drummer relighted his cigar as he mumbled something that this: 'That's the way with everybody—you try and tell 'em sumpin' but they fall asleep before you get half through.'"

"But we are waking up and picket duty is teaching the workers the trick of getting up early in the interest of their fellows and they stay awake, and when the workers fall asleep again it will be under the influence of something more powerful than the fake stories being published daily in the big controlled papers."—As related to the Publicity Committee by one of the traveling public.

"LIQUOR BARON" RESPONSIBLE FOR DISAPPEARANCE OF WOMEN

(By United Press)

Cincinnati, July 25.—Charges that a "liquor baron" enthroned high in the mountain fastnesses of Kentucky is responsible for the mysterious disappearance of six women during the last half year, were made by Carl Schuett, prominent musician here today.

Schuett declared his wife, Anna Mae, 27, was a victim of the alleged moonshine chief, who after mistreating her, forced her to poison herself under threat of torturous death. Schuett claimed that with the assistance of friends he had solved the mystery of the mountain chief, following the disappearance of Anna Mae several weeks ago.

AMUSEMENTS

"What Every Woman Knows"

A notable cast was chosen for William DeMille's Paramount screen version of "What Every Woman Knows," Sir James M. Barrie's famous play which will be shown at the Lyceum last time tonight, and which was presented on the legitimate stage with great success by Maude Adams, Bruce McRae and other famous stage stars. The role of Maggie Wylie, Maud Adams' part, is portrayed by Lois Wilson, while Conrad Nagel plays John Shand, the Bruce McRae part. Charles Ogle, one of the best known screen character men delightfully depicts old Alick Wylie, while Fred Huntly and Guy Oliver are David and James Wylie, his two bachelor sons. Winter Hall plays Charles Venables, the statesman, Lillian Tucker is Sybil Ternent, the "other woman," Claire McDowell is the Comtesse de la Briere and Robert Brower plays a Scotch lawyer. The story is one of great dramatic power.

"The Woman God Changed"

Inasmuch as much of the story of "The Woman God Changed" has to do with a tropical island, the company playing the various roles in this splendid Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture which will be displayed at the Lyceum theatre for two days beginning Wednesday, was carried to the Bahama Islands, off the coast of Florida on a specially chartered steamer where for two weeks, Seena Owen and E. K. Lincoln, who are seen as castaways on an island were kept busy by Director Robert G. Vignola, his cameramen and assistants. The burning and sinking of a steamship following an explosion of ammunition was faithfully pictured and the casualty (in the picture only) proved quite exciting. Other scenes, notably a remarkable cloud effect, were "staged" with excellent results. "The Woman God Changed" is a beautiful photoplay and fully up to the high standard set by Paramount.

champion trader of all times. No less than ninety-two ball players have been involved in his so-called big deals.

Charley Herzog has been McGraw's most traded ball player.

In 1909 he traded Herzog to Boston for Beals Becker. In 1911 he sent Bridwell and Hank Gowdy to Boston for Herzog. In 1914 he traded Herzog and Catcher Harley to Cincinnati for Bob Bescher.

In 1917 he decided he again needed Herzog to bolster up his infield and sent Rousch, McKechnie and Mathewson to Cincinnati for Herzog.

In 1918 he traded Herzog to Boston for Larry Doyle and Jesse Barnes and cash.

SHOPMEN'S SIDE OF CONTROVERSY AS GIVEN BY PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

traveler who reflects the traveling public's opinion of the strike situation, "the railroads are operating under the greatest difficulty and the service is hardly on a par with that afforded a shipment of cattle in days gone by."

"The trains are filthy, dirty and show the effect of the strike at a glance, no water in the water coolers—and in many cases the companies are being compelled to use the old-time equipment—with its smoking lamps, two-thirds of which are not provided with oil."

"The crack train of the Northern Pacific was doing local work and every time we made a stop the passengers prepared for a long stay as the result of the anticipated breakdown."

"There is no condemnation of the strikers—every one seems to understand the injustice of the companies' demands and are in sympathy with the workers."

"Of course we get mad when we find it impossible to make our routing," said a traveling salesman, "but we realize that you strikers are not to blame and our anger naturally is for the stubborn owners of the railroads who we are learning have less reason for cutting wages than was supposed."

"An amusing situation exists on the through trains. The Pullman porters are 'attempting' to keep the coaches clean. Armed with an ordinary whisp broom, the dusky servant progresses from car to car, carefully flicking the dust and an occasional cinder from the arms of each seat—a faint smile flickers over his ebony features as the passengers prepare for a good cleaning—and the smile becomes the passenger's as Sambo travels to the next seat barely disturbing the refuse which clutters up the aisles."

"The hot thirsty patrons are constantly pressing the little lever on the water cooler and the cooler seems to say, 'nothing doing till the boys win out.' The disappointed ones lick their parched lips and breath a prayer or a curse for those responsible for these unnecessary conditions."

"In the smoking compartments the strike situation is cursed and dis-cussed and the mouse in the corner gathers many little sidelights which are worthy of record."

"A big fat drummer lighted a cigar and settled himself to suffer in silence. An erratic little pigmy pushed the curtains aside and squeezed his minute form into the unoccupied portion of the seat occupied by the B. F. D."

"Why in H— don't Harding or Congress or somebody do something to put an end to this row?" snapped the dwarf.

"As the famous Rube Goldberg says, 'That's a foolish question,' growled the fat one. 'Don't you see the game of pass the buck the president, congress and most of the governors are playing? Why man, if 70 per cent of the senate weren't up for re-election this fall as well as every congressman and governor, they'd make short work of these strikes, I'll tell the world, but congress is trying to pass the buck to the president on the bonus question—the president is trying to pass the buck to the governors on the strike question and the governors who are nearest to the voting workers are looking for a way out—in vain.'"

"Boy, if these workers knew the power they held over the officials of this country from the president down at this time, there would be some house-cleaning next November."

"The runt had fallen asleep and the big drummer relighted his cigar as he mumbled something that this: 'That's the way with everybody—you try and tell 'em sumpin' but they fall asleep before you get half through.'"

"But we are waking up and picket duty is teaching the workers the trick of getting up early in the interest of their fellows and they stay awake, and when the workers fall asleep again it will be under the influence of something more powerful than the fake stories being published daily in the big controlled papers."—As related to the Publicity Committee by one of the traveling public.

"LIQUOR BARON" RESPONSIBLE FOR DISAPPEARANCE OF WOMEN

(By United Press)

Cincinnati, July 25.—Charges that a "liquor baron" enthroned high in the mountain fastnesses of Kentucky is responsible for the mysterious disappearance of six women during the last half year, were made by Carl Schuett, prominent musician here today.

Schuett declared his wife, Anna Mae, 27, was a victim of the alleged moonshine chief, who after mistreating her, forced her to poison herself under threat of torturous death. Schuett claimed that with the assistance of friends he had solved the mystery of the mountain chief, following the disappearance of Anna Mae several weeks ago.

AMUSEMENTS

"What Every Woman Knows"

A notable cast was chosen for William DeMille's Paramount screen version of "What Every Woman Knows," Sir James M. Barrie's famous play which will be shown at the Lyceum last time tonight, and which was presented on the legitimate stage with great success by Maude Adams, Bruce McRae and other famous stage stars. The role of Maggie Wylie, Maud Adams' part, is portrayed by Lois Wilson, while Conrad Nagel plays John Shand, the Bruce McRae part. Charles Ogle, one of the best known screen character men delightfully depicts old Alick Wylie, while Fred Hunt and Guy Oliver are David and James Wylie, his two bachelor sons. Winter Hall plays Charles Venables, the statesman. Lillian Tucker is Sybil Ternern, the "other woman," Claire McDowell is the Comtesse de la Briere and Robert Brower plays a Scotch lawyer. The story is one of great dramatic power.

"The Woman God Changed"

Inasmuch as much of the story of "The Woman God Changed" has to do with a tropical island, the company playing the various roles in this splendid Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture which will be displayed at the Lyceum theatre for two days beginning Wednesday, was carried to the Bahama Islands, off the coast of Florida on a specially chartered steamer where for two weeks, Seena Owen and E. K. Lincoln, who are seen as castaways on an island were kept busy by Director Robert G. Vignola, his cameramen and assistants. The burning and sinking of a steamship following an explosion of ammunition was faithfully pictured and the casualty (in the picture only) proved quite exciting. Other scenes, notably a remarkable cloud effect, were "shot" with excellent results. "The Woman God Changed" is a beautiful photoplay and fully up to the high standard set by Paramount.
